HOW TO MARRY IN SCOTLAND

Whole Procedure Takes But an Hour or Two and Costs a Few Shillings.

By the act of 1856 the parties sign in the presence of two witnesses a declaration that they take each other as husband and wife. They then present a petition to the sheriff asking him to certify that they have been married and that one or both of them had their usual residence in Scotland before the marriage or had resided there for 21 days preceding it. This petition may be presented within three months of the declaration constituting the marriage, but is usually presented within three hours. The parties and witnesses attend before the sheriff and the witnesses confirm on oath the statements of fact. The sheriff thereupon grants warrant to the registrar to register the marriage. The registration can then be completed at once. The whole procedure only takes an hour or two and the cost is only a few shillings. On the eve of the new year and summer holidays there is a constant procession of newly married couples and their witnesses before the sheriff in Glasgow. The suitors are principally drawn from the artisan classes and the classes below them, but there is usually a sprinkling of a better class.—Spectator.

BRAGGART TAKEN DOWN.

A passenger who recently came over on one of the smaller boats relates this incident: There was a chap on board who was much given to boasting about his skill with the rifle. The captain thought he'd take the boaster down a peg, so he said: "I don't think you could hit this bottle placed on the rail at 20 yards' distance." The other replied that it would be mere child's play, whereupon the captain said: "I'll bet you $20 you don't hit it three times out of six." The boaster promptly took him up and the test was made. At the first shot he hit the bottle and it disappeared in fragments in the sea. "Trot out another one," cried the shooter, triumphantly, getting his rifle ready. "Not at all," replied the captain. "The conditions were that you should hit that one three times out of six. You have to hit it twice more."

WOMEN AND GLASS HOUSES.

If women would live in glass houses they would have almost perfect complexions. That's what a specialist says. He explains the more sun the women have the better are their complexions. He insists the sun produces the milk-and-roses skin and explains by pointing out the concentrated heat causes the pores to open and induces perspiration. Thus all dirt and impurities are removed. He suggests that women spend much time in the conservatory, saying the moist, warm air is good for the skin, while the perfume of the flowers and plants has a salutary effect. He doesn't say anything about the effect of damp conservatory air on a woman's general health.

THE PITY OF IT.

"Why," exclaimed a newly married woman to a bunch of friends, "for three months after our marriage my dear husband made me bake hot biscuits for him every meal."

"And yet your husband is a strong, healthy-looking fellow," answered her friend, in astonishment. "Doctors say that such a diet is terrible, and—"

"Oh, yes—this husband is healthy. I was referring to my first husband!"

WHO IS THE MOST GENEROUS

Greatest Living Philanthropist, by Bible Standard, May 26 W. W. Smith of Poughkeepsie.

Who is the greatest living philanthropist? By the standard established in the incident related by St. Mark, when Jesus sat over against the treasury and beheld how the people cast money into it, and many that were rich cast in much, but the poor widow who threw in a farthing contributed most of all, the greatest living philanthropist may not be easy to identify. Mr. Carnegie is not he, nor Mr. Rockefeller; perhaps not even Dr. Pearsons, though he has reduced his possessions to an amount estimated as requisite to take care of him in no more than reasonable comfort for the rest of his days. It is said that Poughkeepsie's philanthropist, Mr. William W. Smith, in proportion to his income, gives in public benevolence more than any other person in the land.

A brief item telling of a gift of $40,000 to the Old Ladies' home notes that this brings Mr. Smith's benefactions for the current year to $80,000, and for the few years he has been practicing systematized distribution to more than half a million. Mr. Smith seems further entitled to peculiar distinction for his coinage of the phrase, "vestibule of heaven," as applicable to old ladies' homes.

BY THE OCEAN

Visitor—I wonder why they always call them the "wild waves?"
Native—Don't know; but I know what makes 'em wild.
Visitor—What?
Native—So many fools happen along, and as soon as they see the waves they say "What are the wild waves saying?"

COMPLETING THE ORDER.

A dear little old lady, who has no idea at all that she is old, made a discovery the other day. She overheard her grand-nephew telling another young man something about the excellence of the "free lunch" served at a certain big New York hotel. In the innocence of her perfectly dear old soul she put the information down in her memory for future reference.

Soon after that she happened to be attending a concert at this same hotel, and the party—herself, her nephew and niece—went to the tea room later for a bit of refreshment. The tea was ordered, and then the dear little old lady looked at the waiter and with a sweet, old-fashioned smile and a suggestion of triumph in her manner, said:

"And you may bring us also some of the free lunch."

PLEASED WITH HER PRAISE.

One of the most charming bits of repartee we ever were fortunate enough to listen to was at a big wedding on East Seventy-sixth street last Monday night.

"What charming teeth Miss Dibleton has!" a lady exclaimed. "I never saw anything so beautiful!"

"Oh, thank you so much for saying that!" exclaimed the young lady's escort, fervently and sincerely.

"Oh, pardon me—are you her husband?"

"No, my dear lady—I am only her dentist!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THEN IT'S DIFFERENT.

Schubert was composing his serenade.

"It isn't really a serenade, you know," he said; "I'm not keeping anybody awake with it."

But how often—O, how often!—when thumped out of a reluctant, wheezing, tortured, agonized piano by the girl in the second floor flat, has that immortal production murdered the sleep of the occupants of the first and third floor flats!
